NOTES

25X1

European Security Conference: The Dutch and probably some other NATO members remain highly interested in a European security conference despite the "go slow" posture adopted at the recent NATO ministerial meeting. In consultations with US representatives prior to a visit to Moscow next month by a Foreign Office official, the Dutch claimed that West European governments are being pressed by public opinion to be more forthcoming than the US on the subject of a security conference. The Dutch expect that Soviet efforts to convene a conference will be intensified next year, and warn that many NATO members may find it difficult to ignore the proposal if Moscow offers a more attractive agenda than heretofore.
